

8/930449

ABSTRACT

The invention is a high energy supply apparatus for stably producing a high quality melt crystallized film, and a method of forming a crystalline film. Melt crystallization is performed under controlled reconstruction of the surface of the crystallized film, without contaminating the high energy supply apparatus. In addition, high energy is efficiently utilized through reuse of reflected energy.